ASTORIA WOMAN WHO KNOWS ROYALTY

MRS. JULIUS DAVIS, OF THIS CITY, ONCE CARED FOR QUEEN OF SPAIN—RELATES INTERESTING STORY IN THIS CONNECTION.

At 175 Ninth street, in this city, there lives a woman who talks quite familiarly of kings, queens, princesses and princes, dukes and duchesses, and all the distinguished personages which the majority of persons never know of, except from the yellow tales invented by aspiring journalists throughout the world. The woman who has the distinction of knowing royalty, is Mrs. Julius Davis. Mrs. Davis has lately been one of the nurses at the Children's Home in Portland, has lived an active life and now resides in Astoria. She receives an annuity from the English government and passes her spare time in writing personal impressions gained during her experience with royalty. She admits that in reality kings and queens, and in fact all royal personages, are not so great as the common people are apt to believe. Some are truly quite ordinary and below the commonplace. They have faults—big ones, too—just like you and me.

One of Mrs. Davis' interesting tales of her travels recounts the fact that she was for a few hours the nurse of Princess Ena, recently made queen of Spain. It seemed that the princess, then a child of five years, had gone out riding and had been thrown from her horse. At the time the child seemed unharmed and returned home. Being taken to the nursery, the princess fell asleep and when an attempt was made to awaken her, the child made no response. Dr. Richardson, the family physician at the Osborne house, where the royal family was then staying, was summoned and found that the little princess had concussion of the brain. The head nurse of the royal hospital was called, but being absent, Miss Carmichael (now Mrs. Davis) came.

Mrs. Davis cared for the Princess Ena for a short time and when recovered, the child refused to forget her nurse, and was taken to see her. Mrs. Davis exhibits a 3-pound note presented her for her services by Prince Henry of Battenburg, the child's father, and also a note in the handwriting of Princess Beatrice, which says, "With many thanks for kind attentions to my child. BEATRICE."

Mrs. Davis has many other stories of a reminiscent nature to relate and enjoys telling them.

In the Dog Hospital—J. N. Griffin is the owner of a handsome black Newfoundland dog. At least he owns him nominally, the children being the tacit and active proprietors and chums of the household pet. The youngsters were engaged in a game of hide-and-seek at the Griffin home day before yesterday afternoon, and the dog was the liveliest member of the outfit. In his eagerness to find his play-fellows he sprang from the window of an outhouse to the ground, a distance of twenty-five feet, and broke his left fore-leg short off at the elbow; the dog weighing ninety pounds made the fall an exceedingly ugly one. Yesterday he was put tenderly into an express wagon and taken to Llewellyn's kennels where his leg was skillfully set, chloroform cutting a prominent part in the operation, and now he is in a fair way to resume his games with the children, but at, as yet, an undetermined date. In the meantime he has a string of childish visitors each day and all day and it is needless to say, suffers for nothing that his young cronies can devise to gratify his well known and fastidious appetite.

Will Invade Europe—S. Morton Cohn, well known in Astoria, and a brother of Mrs. P. Gevurtz of the Star theater, has just returned to Portland from Europe, where he has completed arrangements to give London, Paris and Berlin 10-cent vaudeville. Mr. Cohn will be remembered here by the fact that he built the Star theater here, and started the circuit vaudeville houses of this name throughout the country, afterwards selling out to Sullivan & Considine. Mr. Cohn says that he recognized the opportunity in the three great European cities for furnishing cheap amusement to the poorer classes and forthwith organized a company. The first theater in London will open on Oct. 15 and as soon as possible in the other cities. The admission price in London will be 5 pence.

Informal Party—A pleasant informal party was given at the home of Mrs. Ray L. Farmer, on East Center street, last evening, when a number of young

I Was in Bed for Three Weeks

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered a great deal during Change of Life. For eleven weeks I had hemorrhages and it made me so weak I was in bed for three weeks. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, although it was against my doctor's will and I had to hide it. I took it regularly until I had taken five bottles, and it brought me out all right, a perfectly strong, well woman. Any one can tell how healthy I am by looking at my picture, and any one can write to me or my daughter about our wonderful cures.

Mrs. F. M. MUSHRUSH, East Chicago, Ind.

The whole secret of safety at this time of life is thorough preparation before the change begins. Fortify the system with a course of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This wonderful medicine has carried thousands of women through this danger period.

No such helpful advice to women who are sick can be had anywhere as will be received free by addressing Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Mrs. Pinkham is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for twenty-five years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.
